

My military Hero By Peter Blalock

My Daddy is my military hero. He is an engineer in the Air Force. He plans projects for bases. He goes to Afghanistan and helps them grow. He is my hero because he is brave, loyal and very, very focused.

My daddy faces danger without being afraid. He is brave. His commander will only ride a convoy if daddy is driving. Daddy goes to Afghanistan and wherever the Airforce sends him. He is not afraid to leave his family. He does his job no matter what.

My Daddy is true to everyone. He is true to our family, he is true to his commander, he is true to the military. He is with us whenever he has a day off or whenever he has spare time. He loves us very much too. He obeys his commander and does what he says without complaining. He always goes to work and never misses a day.

My Daddy is focused. He never gets distracted. If he gets a call from us and we ask him to play, he doesn't turn from his work. He supports the military very well. He is determined to do his job to the best of his ability.

Daddy sacrifices his time with his sons to support America and fight for its freedom. Now that's a good Dad! He is the best Daddy ever. He plays with us and takes as much spare time as he has and uses it to play with us. He is a military hero to me because he is brave, loyal and he is focused and willing to sacrifice. He supports America very well.
